Kamuela, HI – March 20, 2018 – Lani Kamaau Yamasaki, a Native Hawaiian Personal Development & CERT Health and Integrative Nutrition Coach, and Social Business Development Consultant was recently a featured guest on Hollywood Live. The show, which filmed at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel in Los Angeles, California by an Emmy Award winning crew, was hosted by Jack Canfield, Best-Selling Author® and co-creator of Chicken Soup for the Soul. The show included guests from around the country who shared their expertise and stories of their success.

Lani Kamaau Yamasaki, respected as a “bridge-builder between cultures”, was one of the guests on the show discussing Live Lōkahi, a social legacy program she created based on holistic traditional Hawaiian and global wisdom practices integrated with science, technology, engineering, art, agriculture and math (STEAM). The Live Lōkahi Legacy Program is recognized as a leading model in the Fourth Industrial Revolution where we are being asked to look at our values and lifestyles, including the way we work and relate to one another due to the adoption of cyber-physical systems and the Internet.

Hollywood Live, filmed in Los Angeles, is produced by The Dicks and Nanton Celebrity Branding Agency®. The episode featuring Yamasaki recently aired on Bravo and A&E in major markets coast to coast.
